

Who We Are

CFLeads is the only national network of community foundations committed to community leadership. We give individual community foundations tools to rally the resources and build the relationships needed to drive progress, and we empower the entire field to create the best possible outcomes for community residents. Together, we are community foundations leading change.

What We Do

We believe community foundations stand as powerful forces for good in our communities. We help them build strong communities by advancing effective practices, sharing knowledge, and galvanizing action on critical issues of our time.

We do this through a robust set of peer learning opportunities uniquely designed for community foundations. These opportunities are guided by the Framework for Community Leadership by a Community Foundation and the five competencies for community leadership that are critical for effective practice: sharing data, engaging residents, working across sectors, marshalling resources and shaping public policy.

What We Offer

These peer learning opportunities are available to community foundations across the country. See our Learning Opportunities for a full list of offerings, and get in touch if you want to know more!
